In this issue we introduce to you some of the new faces of TJC’s family. Meet our new registrar, executive vice president for business affairs, testing director and department chair for College Preparatory Studies.

A growing number of college students are entering higher education with deficient skills in mathematics, reading and writing. It’s a challenge TJC takes seriously. The College sees preparing these students for college-level work as an important part of its mission.

The Piper Award is one of the most prestigious academic honors in the nation. Read about Dr. Alan Barnes, who was recognized by the Minnie Piper Stevens Foundation earlier this year. He joins Dr. Bob Peters, who retired in August, as TJC’s only Piper recipients.

Performing groups, faculty, staff and travel guests had a ball in Hawaii last March. Now travelers can support TJC and enjoy themselves, too, by joining the Apache Adventurers in a trip to Tahiti. Learn more and read about the latest contributions to your College’s Foundation.

Building the Future

As this issue of the Apache goes to print, a new dressing room facility and a concession are near completion at Pat Hartley Field.

Phase I of renovation at Wagstaff Gymnasium has been completed and fans and teams are enjoying the new look that includes fixed seating and increased capacity.

Wagstaff Gym looks as impressive as the day it opened.

In the Jean Browne Theatre new seating and carpeting has been installed and the capacity has been increased.

Inside the Ornelas Health and Physical Education Center, old carpeting in the Gentry Gym has been removed and replaced with beautiful hardwood. During the Christmas break, new paint throughout the Center will bring the facility to a like-new look, while at Genevoc Science Building an elevator will finally be installed in a shaft that was built when the building opened in 1972.

These are construction projects made possible by private gifts, plant funds and Board reserve funds. Wagstaff renovation Phase I represents only the second use of Board reserve funds since the fund was established in 1996. The fund was tapped several years ago for roof repair on several buildings.

Each budget year the College dedicates $400,000 to the fund for projects and initiatives deemed by the Board to be of immediate concern. The use of $2.1 million for the Wagstaff project leaves about $2 million in the fund.

Construction over the next five years will need to be funded by a combination of dedicated revenue and private gifts. The needs are obvious to those who encounter the College on a regular basis.

Construction Needs

Increased enrollment and projections for continued growth point out the need for a new classroom building. Laboratory space in Genevoc is so scarce that lab classrooms are occupied as late as 9:40 p.m. on Saturdays.

We realize the inconvenience this presents students and eventually the College must address the need. Because of the age of the existing labs and the difficulty in converting them to today’s standards, it may be a more prudent use of funds to construct a new science building and repurpose Genevoc as a traditional classroom building.

Parking is an area where the College may always have a need. However, constructing a parking garage could provide a location central to classroom buildings and free up some land surface. It’s an expensive proposition but one that remains important.

For its 9,617 students and 530 full-time employees, the College began the Fall semester with 3,089 parking spaces at the Main Campus.

Land acquisition to allow for continued growth must occur before the College becomes land-locked. Immediate opportunities exist for land acquisition and buying land to the east or west of the Main Campus would improve our growth options.

The number of residency applications denied each school year more than doubles the number of students we are able to accommodate. A new residence hall to house 500 students would improve our ability to meet demand while providing a revenue stream to help re-pay the initial outlay for construction.

Finally, a new student center could better serve students as a recreation and study facility, particularly with an increased on-campus population.

The Rogers Student Center has served the College well and will continue to do so. However, at construction, space intended for recreation was removed from the final plan. Since 1989, the center has been used more and more as a student services building. Most students do not congregate at Rogers for recreation, enrichment programs, social activities or studying.

Renovating Rogers for student services use exclusively and building an adjacent student center to fill these voids would improve student interaction, school spirit, retention and student success.

Precisely how the College will fund each of these projects has not been determined. If all projects were tackled within the next 10 years, the construction and renovation costs could easily reach $100 million.

Our Board of Trustees sees the needs and understands that we must plan for the future and begin acting on high-priority initiatives now. Over the next several months the Board will be considering these projects and funding mechanisms. One thing they will keep in mind is the dramatic tuition and fee increases Texas has seen in recent years.

Keeping TJC affordable is of primary concern. Over the past decade, student tuition and fees have increased 86 percent. Similar increases at universities have kept the College in line with the market and allowed TJC to continue to be one of the most affordable options in the region. However, the risk of excluding students with financial constraint must temper our reaction to fund growth and improvement.

Departments Bring “Scrooge” to Wise Auditorium

Each year, thousands of theatre patrons enjoy the annual musical, produced by TJC’s music and dance and speech and theatre departments, in Wise Auditorium.

The musical typically takes place in the Spring. This year, the departments agreed to move the musical to the Fall semester to present the holiday classic, “Scrooge.”

“We agreed this would be a fun show to do and a challenge to all of us,” said Dr. Cheryl Rogers, managing director of fine and performing arts. "Clarence Strickland did a wonderful job of directing the stage performance and creating the settings and we have an excellent cast of voices. It was one of the most rewarding performances we’ve had.”

The show played for packed houses four nights.

The schedule shift means the annual Pops Concert, produced by music and dance, will take place in February.

Scrooge included more than 60 cast members and two dozen behind-the-scenes workers.

Wagstaff Gymnasium Returns to “Like-New” Form

When it was built in 1964, Wagstaff Gymnasium was the king of Texas junior college basketball arenas.

Legendary coach Floyd Wagstaff made winning a tradition that brought thousands to the gym to watch his Apaches. Often the allowable capacity was exceeded and it was not uncommon to see lines out the door and fans inside gathered around the railing to view.

College officials hope completion of Phase I of the renovation of the gym will be a step in a return to the gym’s glory days.

The recent renovation was celebrated with a ribbon-cutting ceremony on November 20. The men’s basketball team played its first game in the facility November 5.

“It’s great to see the facility back to state-of-the-art form, with new seats, a new floor and new lighting,” said Dr. Tim Drain, director of intercollegiate athletics. “For many people, this is their first exposure to TJC so it is exciting to have it return to form.”

Expansion to the west and east has increased seating capacity to 2,500 and all lower-level seating is reserved, with ticket-bearers being issued individual tickets for the entire men’s and ladies’ basketball seasons.

The Phase II renovation plan calls for enclosure of the gym’s porch and substantial renovation and addition to the dressing- and locker-room areas. Funds for Phase II are being solicited by the TJC Foundation.

TJC Guitarists Perform at Pepe Romero Festival

A TJC classical guitar quartet, under the direction of Frank Kimlicko, participated in a Celebration of Pepe Romero at the University of Southern California and were featured in the Grand Finale Concert.

Only thirty guitarists were selected by an audition committee to take part in the Pepe Romero Festival. Highlights of the six-day event included a symposium, two benefit concerts, a joint recital and a question-and-answer session with Romero. The week culminated in a Grand Finale Concert that closed with Maestro Romero conducting the TJC quartet accompanied by all festival participants in a new setting of “La rueda,” Celadonio’s gift to his son Pepe.

Phillips Productions
New TJC Marketing Firm

In July the College began working with a new marketing firm, Phillips Productions, Inc., of Irving.

Phillips is best-known for its production of the syndicated television show “Texas Country Reporter.” Bob Phillips, host of the program, is the company’s chief executive officer.

The company has also worked with Southern Methodist University, Texas Christian University, Abilene Christian University and for national clients such as Centex and Dairy Queen.

New marketing materials for television, multimedia and print are in the works, including a college recruitment and informational videotape. Work on the videotaped project began in September and is expected to be complete by the end of the year.

Freshman Emily Biggs talks to Phillips Productions’ Jason Anderson about her decision to attend TJC. Interviews with students and faculty will be used in a series of marketing projects for the College.

Bridging the Gap Between High School and College

By Janna Casstevens

Bridging the gap between high school and college has become easier for first-time college students, thanks to the College Preparatory Program at Tyler Junior College. The program helps ease students into college level courses, as well as into the culture and environment of higher education.

That first semester of college can be overwhelming, especially if a student has deficiencies in reading, writing or mathematics. Students who do not survive their first semesters academically generally do not attempt another semester or even try to go on to their sophomore years in college. This phenomenon was uncovered in a TJC self-study on student retention. The reason why students were not succeeding was simple: they were not prepared academically or emotionally for the way college courses are taught.

The research suggested that students try harder, stay longer and have a greater rate of success if they feel a connection to the college at the earliest stages of their academic careers. Students also need to feel like they are personally “ready” for college. If an individual does not feel “connected” to the college or able to meet the challenge of the classroom, he or she will likely give up and withdraw from school.

The problem of student retention exists at all college campuses, whether they are two-year or four-year institutions. Community colleges face a particular challenge in that they are often “commuter colleges,” i.e. the students do not live on campus, and that many students are the first generation of their families to go to college. The environment is alien to them and they have no one at home who has been there and can reassure them that everything the student feels is absolutely normal. These issues can really take a toll on a student’s self-esteem and courage to continue in higher education.

The desire to help students succeed prompted TJC to design the College Preparatory Program. In the fall of 2002, the program began with students who tested into the developmental credit courses of the prep program. Courses in reading, writing and mathematics were not “dumbed down,” but rather modified for the first-time student entering college directly from high school. A staff of instructors who not only possessed subject matter knowledge, but were also skilled in pedagogy, or the art and science of teaching, lead the charge in helping students succeed. The classes centered on subject matter and study skills, much of it tailored to the individual learning styles of the students themselves. The idea behind the program was, as it is now, that every student can learn and succeed, but not in the same way or on the same day. The program continues to grow and evolve but the basic goals of the program have stayed the same: to help college students succeed.

Not every student is required to participate in the College Preparatory Program, but those who have tested into the Program will need to participate in order to move on to the next level. Standard college entrance exams or the Texas Higher Education Assessment exam or THEA determine entry into the program. Around 3,000 students currently participate in the prep program, roughly 34% of the Tyler Junior College student body.

“The courses of the College Prep Program are not dry and boring,” says Dr. Vickie Geisel, Dean, College Preparatory Studies/Director and Counselor of Support Services. “In fact, many are..."
exciting and creatively taught. It’s not uncommon for students of a math course to be seen out on the sidewalks drawing algebraic equations on butcher paper with chalk or to see an instructor teaching a math class using candy on an overhead to drive home a point to her students.”

Creative instruction and a sincere interest in the wellbeing of students have contributed to the highest rate of student retention for Tyler Junior College in years. So too have strict attendance policies and attendance tracking, Dr. Deborah Kelley, Department Chair of the College Preparatory Program and her staff keep track of the students in the program.

“We try to impress on each student the importance of his or her being in class to get the maximum benefit of the program. They cannot just sign up and then not go to class!” says Dr. Kelley. “Gently, but firmly, reminding students that much of their success relies on their attendance is a part of integrating the first-time student into college,” she adds.

One of the facets of the prep program is the establishment of what Geisel and Kelley call “learning communities,” or groups of students taking classes for developmental credit who stay together throughout their time in the program and help each other learn. Students have a home base of classmates with whom to work and succeed as a group. Not only do they succeed academically, they also learn to excel in coping with the social environment of the college campus by realizing that they are not alone as “first-timers”.

And what about those times when an instructor cannot be in class? The program has even remedied that problem by having a pool of substitute instructors at the ready so students never have to miss a single class.

“Our goal is to take students where they are and to help them get to where they need to be academically,” said TJC President Dr. William R. Crowe. “For many students who for whatever reason aren’t prepared for college-level work in one or more subjects, that means working with them to help them achieve competence.”

Crowe said the College is also taking the effort a step further, working with area high schools to pre-test students in their junior year and pre-advice them for college. Participating high schools are also offered the college preparatory curriculum in mathematics, which they may offer as a senior-year course option to students who have tested deficient, helping ensure their smooth transition to college.

“A lot of students satisfy their high school level mathematics requirements early and don’t take math their senior year,” he said. “For many students that’s a mistake that causes them to enter college behind where they really should be.”

The program has helped student performance greatly. The percentage of students passing English from the fall of 2001 to the fall of 2003 increased almost 24%. For math, it averaged out to 25% and for reading, 28%. This kind of achievement is not only a boost for enrollment, it is a boost for the self-esteem of the students as well.

What does the future hold for the College Preparatory Program? Drs. Geisel and Kelley agree that they would genuinely like to see enrollment in the prep program go down. Ideally, students should already come to college ready for the rigors of higher education courses. To achieve this, the program now works with many area high schools so that they can develop their own college preparatory courses, thus eliminating the need for the first time college student to have to get that support in her or his first freshman semester. But until that time, first timers can ease into their higher education careers with the knowledge that, at Tyler Junior College, bridging that gap has never been easier, both academically and emotionally.
Dr. Alan Barnes Joins Elite List with Retiree Dr. Bob Peters

By Nita Wilson

Granted, without a red carpet, international television coverage and the suspense of opening a large gold-lined envelope, the Piper Awards don't rank with the popular Academy Awards. However, for college and university educators in Texas, the Piper Professor Award is a very prestigious prize.

This spring, Dr. Alan Barnes, who has taught English at TJC for 34 years, became the second TJC instructor to receive a Piper Award. Dr. Robert K. Peters III, retired dean of University Studies and former history/government instructor affectionately known as "Dr. Bob", received the award in 1993.

The annual award is given by the Minnie Stevens Piper Foundation of San Antonio to recognize outstanding achievement in the teaching profession in colleges and universities in Texas. The award, which includes a lapel pin and a $5,000 honorarium, was presented to Dr. Barnes by Dr. William R. Crowe, president of Tyler Junior College, in May at the University Studies honors luncheon.

"Dr. Barnes is an outstanding teacher who is respected by students and associates," Dr. Crowe said. "We are pleased that he is receiving this prestigious award that is presented this year to only 15 college and university professors in the state."

In addition to teaching English, Dr. Barnes has served as a counselor and orientation director. He has a doctorate in education from East Texas State University, now Texas A&M University, Commerce, and bachelor's and master's degrees from Texas A&M University.

In addition, he is an international award-winning advisor to the Alpha Omicron Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, a scholastic honorary organization at two-year colleges.

At TJC, he received the 2002 Mattie Alice Scroggin Baker Excellence in Teaching Award and the Zelda Boucher Service Award, 2000. He has been named to Who's Who Among American Teachers.

His awards for counseling include the Presidential Award from the Texas Counseling Association in 2000, Piney Woods Counselor of the Year 1997, and he has received six Texas Counseling Association Distinguished Service Awards.

Dr. Barnes is Tyler Junior College Faculty Senate president this year.

He is a member of the TJC Curriculum and Instruction Committee and a number of other TJC committees. He is also a member, and former chapter president, of the Piney Woods Counseling Association. He also served as president and as a member of the board of the Tyler Association for Retarded Citizens and as executive director of the Baptist Student Union Executive Board.

He was a charter member of the English Honor Society and of the Texas College Dr. Alan Barnes was recognized for excellence in the classroom with the presentation of a Piper Professor award in May. Dr. Crowe, right, presented the certificate and a check for $5,000 from the Minnie Stevens Piper Foundation.
Counseling Association. He also belonged to Phi Delta Kappa, Sigma Tau Delta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, the American Association for Counseling and Development, American Personnel and Guidance Association, National Orientation Directors Association, Texas Junior College Teachers Association, and Piney Woods Association for Counseling and Development.

During the past 20 years, he has been a presenter numerous times at state and national conferences and conventions including the Noel-Levitz Conference on Student Retention, the Texas Counseling Association and Piney Woods Counseling Association, the Freshman Year Experience Conference of the Southwest and the American Technical Education Association National Conference.

His community activities include serving on the East Texas Communities Foundation Scholarship Selection Committee and, in 1999, as president of the Association of Retarded Citizens. He volunteers for Special Olympics, Walk a Mile for a Special Child and United Way of Tyler.

Dr. Barnes, who has taught Sunday School more than 25 years, considers teaching a calling. "Seeing that gleam in a student's eye when they get it is always so rewarding," he said.

A father of four with two grandchildren, his wife of 37 years passed away last year after a lengthy battle with cancer. "I attribute much of my success to Barbara," he said.

During 38 years at TJC, Dr. Bob has acquired lots of funny stories and many fond memories. He said becoming the first member of the TJC faculty in 1993 to receive a Piper Award was one of the most rewarding of his numerous honors. When his wife, Judy, picked him up at the airport after a business trip to Austin and informed him that he had been selected to receive the award, he was speechless.

Which he said for him is a rare occasion.

A Tyler native and TJC graduate, he received a bachelor's degree from Texas Christian University, a master's from Stephen F. Austin State University and a doctorate from The University of Texas at Austin. Although he has served on several state agency governing boards and has testified before several congressional and state legislative committees, he has declined job offers that would have taken him to other cities.

Shortly before he was scheduled to receive the Piper award and give the TJC commencement address, he received a lucrative offer for a job in Austin. "I said I would consider the offer and call back, but we had a severe weather event that night, and I was on the radio a lot. I became so busy thinking about my speech that I completely forgot."

Associates of Dr. Bob know his forgetting anything is also rare. He describes himself as being fascinated with history and political science and dedicated to inspiring approximately 25,000 students through the years to become better citizens.

Although he lost his sight following an accident while playing basketball when he was 13, that did not prevent him from becoming a Tyler celebrity providing weather reports for a radio station and the Tyler Courier-Times Telegraph and teaching in the classroom and on television. "I like to explain how things work," he said.

Through the years, he has also become an unofficial TJC historian. Having lived many years near the campus, he witnessed many changes from his front lawn. Dr. Bob laughingly recalls when the original Gentry Gym, a building moved to the campus from Camp Fannin, was scheduled to be demolished. "One Sunday night, it came about a six-inch rain and Gentry Gym collapsed," he said. "They didn't have to tear it down."

On another occasion, a six-inch rain turned the construction site of what would be the basement of the Vaughn Library into a gigantic mud puddle. Dr. Bob said a pumper truck from the Tyler Fire Department was used to drain it. "It took about two weeks. Then here comes another big rain, and filled it back up."

Now that he has retired as TJC's dean of University Studies, he plans to explore new opportunities and to continue his work providing weather reports. He and his wife Judy enjoy visits with their son, Jonathan, and their daughter Anne, and they appreciate the blessings they have received. "We like Tyler, and we've been very fortunate here," he said. "I've enjoyed what I've done."

Dr. Bob and Dr. Barnes both say they were honored to receive the Piper Award, but being nominated by the TJC faculty was the greater honor.

TJC's only other Piper Award winner, Dr. Bob Peters, right, is greeted by longtime co-worker David Ligon at Peters' retirement reception in August.
Performance Groups Provide Military Entertainment in Hawaii

The Apache Band, Apache Belles, the Jazz Band and vocal groups Harmony and Understanding and A Cappella Choir entertained hundreds of military personnel in March in a trip that included more than 300 students, faculty, staff and friends of the College.

During the week-long trip, TJC groups entertained crowds at Schofield Army Barracks near Honolulu and at Pearl Harbor Naval Base. Some of the troops entertained had recently received orders for service in Afghanistan and were scheduled to depart the following week.

It was the first time this many performance groups traveled together and it was the largest travel group ever put together for a TJC-sponsored activity.

Student groups welcomed home those serving on the submarine USS Santa Fe. When not rehearsing or performing, students learned about American history and Hawaiian culture and traditions. The trip also included a visit to the USS Arizona memorial.

Apache Adventurers Travel Club Invites You to Join the Next Excursion

The Tyler Junior College Alumni Association is pleased to announce the creation of the Apache Adventurers Travel Club and the club’s first official alumni trip—a Tahiti cruise for Spring Break 2005 (March 12–19).

Special group pricing starts at $2,693 per person. Proceeds from the trip will benefit the TJC Alumni Scholarship Fund. This Apache Adventurers trip includes free airfare to Tahiti; space to guest ratio of 60, one of the highest of any ship serving the North American market; onboard dive program; state-of-the-art retractable water sports marina; an onboard lecture program; all outside suites and staterooms, 50 percent with private balconies; two elegant restaurants with open-seating dining; complimentary wine with lunch and dinner, complimentary soft drinks, mineral water and juices and complimentary in-stateroom bar set-up; and a private Tyler Junior College Alumni cocktail reception. All shipboard gratuities are included.

The Radisson Seven Seas Tahiti Cruise is aboard the most luxurious ship to sail in Tahiti on a year-round basis, the Paul Gauguin, with a crew-to-guest ratio of 1 to 1.5 (320 guests total).

“We depart from Papeete (Tahiti) on a Saturday night and during the week, travel to the islands of Raiatea, Tahaa, Bora Bora, Moorea, and then disembark at Papeete the next Saturday morning,” said Alumni Relations Director Betty Briggs.

Foundation Holds 17th Annual Golf Tournament

The TJC Foundation held its 17th annual golf tournament at Willow Brook Country Club in September. Twenty-four teams participated to support TJC’s exceptional athletic programs.

Golfers enjoyed lunch at the Men’s Grill followed by a day of golf beginning with a shotgun start just after lunch.

The College’s athletic programs have produced 35 national titles, including a men’s tennis championship in 2004.

“We would like to thank all of the participants and sponsors who so generously helped with the tournament,” said Dr. Kim Russell, vice president for external affairs and executive director of the TJC Foundation. “These funds help the College to provide much-needed scholarships for deserving student athletes and to assure the continued success of TJC athletics.”

Gardens Project Embraced by Area Gardeners; Horticulture Degree Announced

Tyler Junior College, Stephen F. Austin State University and East Texas business and community leaders are joining together to bring new horticulture and garden programs to TJC.

Plans for the TJC Botanical Gardens and a partnership with Stephen F. Austin University were presented in May at a gathering of the Tyler Junior College Botanical Gardens Advisory Committee and area nursery and landscape professionals.

“As part of the college’s master plan, the Tyler Junior College Botanical Gardens will feature seven unique gardens that will provide educational opportunities for students and visitors,” Mitch Andrews, TJC Foundation director of principal gifts, said. “The Gardens will also create new and diverse event spaces that will enhance student life on campus and provide ideal settings for community activities.”

The Tyler Junior College Botanical Gardens are being funded by private organizations and individuals. Area garden clubs are helping to fund enhancements to the Brundrett Azalea Gardens. Already part of Tyler’s annual Azalea Trail, the Brundrett Azalea Garden launched the development of campus-wide Botanical Gardens at TJC.

During the meeting, Dr. Dale Perritt, SFA agriculture department chair, and TJC officials announced a bachelor of science degree in horticulture science with all classes taught on the TJC campus.

The degree plan calls for TJC to provide lower level courses in general education and specified lower level courses in agriculture. Upper level courses will be delivered by SFA instructors.

A minimum of 42 hours of study will be delivered by SFA instructors, 36 of which are advanced study. Students must be accepted to SFA before enrolling in the upper level agricultural classes.
Rusk Scholarship Program Expanded with Donation

Citizen’s 1st Bank recently added $100,000 to its scholarship program at Tyler Junior College for Rusk High School graduates. The addition amounts to approximately $250,000 that the Citizens 1st Bank Scholarship Program has and will provide for Rusk High School graduates and will total over fifty-five scholarships of approximately $5,000 each.

The Citizens 1st Bank Scholarship Program began in 1999 as a means to provide opportunities for good academic graduates of Rusk High School whose future plans include college but who have little or no scholarship assistance available. “This program has also honored twenty-five outstanding Rusk and East Texas citizens, demonstrating that being from East Texas is an advantage to becoming a success,” said James L. Perkins, President of Citizens 1st Bank. He continued: “We know we are strengthening the communitites we serve by substantially assisting the youth in furthering their education.”

“Twenty-five students have received scholarships to TJC through the program. Approximately 95 percent of the students who have held a Citizens 1st Bank Scholarship have graduated from TJC, many with honors,” said Dr. Kim Russell, vice president, external affairs/executive director of the TJC Foundation.

Scholarships Update ...

East Texas Employment and Training recently established four Top Ten Scholarships with a gift of $100,000 to the TJC Foundation.

East Texas Employment and Training was organized in 1978 by the Cherokee County School Board and has worked to oversee federal training programs throughout East Texas, including establishing various workforce centers.

The scholarships were established to recognize outstanding individuals and to ease the financial burden of students wanting to pursue a higher education. A gift from Titus and Linda Jones recently established the Kirk Daren Jones Memorial Scholarship, in memory of the couple’s son, Kirk, who attended TJC.

The endowed scholarship will benefit students who participate and excel in the GED program through the Literacy Council of Tyler.

A generous contribution from Harold Beaird recently established two Legacy Scholarships. One scholarship will honor the 1947 Apache Band, of which he was a member. The other is established to honor TJC President Dr. William R. Crowe and his service to TJC.

The East Texas Council of Trucking Professionals recently funded a $1,000 scholarship to a student of the TJC automotive technology department. The recipient, Raybon Riden, was selected by the program director based upon his potential to excel in an automotive industry career.

A Look Back at Homecoming 2004

This year’s Homecoming offered a wide variety of alumni events. On Thursday night, the Alumni Association held its first TJC Cruise Night at the Whataburger Hot Rod Cafè. Alumni shared memories, their latest news and voted for their favorite cars. Friday afternoon, we hosted a Campus Wide Pep Rally and Picnic on Jenkins’ Lawn. Over 2,000 students, faculty, staff and alumni gathered together to show their Apache Spirit. That night at the awards ceremony we honored three distinguished recipients and enjoyed listening—and dancing to TJC Jazz Band’s tribute to the “Big Band” hits of the 40s. Saturday morning at Trinity Mother Frances Rose Stadium there were reunions for the Apache Band, Belles and Cheerleaders, a Tailgate Party and then it was off to watch the big game against Kilgore. For a photographic review of all our Alumni Homecoming activities, see pages 14, 15 and 16.
